BRIGHTENING FADED PROCKS

The Woman's Home Companion gives a hint that may be useful to many. A pink cotton or linen dress which has become badly faded may be freshened to look almost as good as new. Take a piece of Turkey red cheesecloth and boil it in a quantity of water until the desired shade is obtained. Dip a little of the dress in it to try it. Of course it will be somewhat lighter when dry than when wet. If wet evenly all over, there is no danger of spotting. An eighth of a yard will be more than enough for one dress. Navy blue cheesecloth may be used in the same manner to freshen the color of a light blue dress.

THE BASQUE RETURNS

Such radical and surprising changes are being made in women's costumes that we are gradually becoming prepared for anything.

One of the latest tendencies seems to be toward the return of the basque. Its numbers are few as yet, but it has appeared—even the pointed basque with tails.

Some are buttoned at the back from peplum to yoke with tiny closely placed buttons. Fringe is often used to edge them.

Ultra fashionable gowns have been seen in our eastern cities with the basque made of brocade or cretonne, with plain colored skirts, usually plaited. When the basque is of different material from the skirt, it may have hip panners, thus turning it into a short polonaise.

There is a tendency to reverse the position of the pointed girdle. It is beginning to turn downward at the front rather than up. This tendency may or may not mean anything in regard to future styles.

SOME USES OF LEMONS

Two or three slices of lemon in a cup of strong tea will cure a nervous headache.

A tablespoonful of lemon juice in a small cup of black coffee will relieve a bilious headache.

A dash of the juice in plain water makes a cleansing tooth wash, removing tartar and sweetening the breath. A lotion of lemon juice and rose water will remove tan and whiten the skin.

Plain lemon juice applied and left to dry on the face will help to banish freckles.

Lemon juice is superior to vinegar for salads. It should be blended with an equal quantity of olive oil.

Tough meat can be made tender if boiled in water to which a teaspoonful of lemon juice has been added.

The juice of two or three lemons added to a pitcher of water is excellent to use as a final rinse when shampooing the hair, especially if you can not have rainwater. It leaves the hair soft, smooth and glossy.

Lemon juice also removes unsightly vegetable and other stains from the hands, and used with salt it will remove rust spots and ink stains from white fabrics.

FOR WOMEN AND THE HOME

A cup of strong coffee will remove the odor of onions from the breath.

One of the best remedies for indigestion is a weak solution of salt in water.

To save the fingers when cleaning fish cut off the fins with a pair of scissors.

Vaseline, if rubbed into the nails at night, will improve them and prevent hangnails.

Peroxide is a good thing to use on sunburnt hair, as it bleaches it and sometimes kills the growth.

If coconut oil is brushed over the eye brows it will promote their growth and give them a glossy appearance.

Add borax to the water in which the dish towels are to be washed and it will aid in making them white and soft.

Rub the bottom crust of the pie with the white of an egg and it will prevent the juice of the fruit from soaking in.

Southerners affirm that the people of the north spoil watermelons by chilling them too much, which renders the melons indigestible.

Drooping flowers will freshen wonderfully if the ends of the stems are trimmed off with a sharp knife and then held in hot water for a minute.

HIGH SOCIETY

If you wish to be right up to date you must entertain your friends at a balloon house party. The balloon house party is the very latest fad.

The balloon is anchored near the house. It is fastened so that one may go up to quite a height and still remain within a certain area. On pleasant afternoons the guests may ascend in it and sway above the treetops. The motion is delightful and gives a sensation of coolness and freedom from care that would no doubt be very highly appreciated by society who have grown weary of the ordinary round of gaieties.

Here the devotees of bridge could indulge in a game without the least fear of interruption. Other amusements might also be provided and of course afternoon tea would be served. There would always be the necessary element of danger to make it interesting and exciting. The anchor might become loosened or the cable might break and set the balloon adrift. In fact a variety of accidents might occur. If there were no such possibility, ty, this form of entertainment could never hope to win popularity with the blasé members of society.

It is quite unlikely that any of the society leaders of Globe will be deluged with invitations to attend such parties, but in case any one should, it would be necessary to provide several handsome afternoon gowns for wear above the treetops. Large hats with drooping brims would be appropriate, as parasols would be burdensome.

Correspondence from Safford

SAFFORD, July 14.—Among those at Camp Inception who are escaping the terrific heat of the past few days are: Mr. and Mrs. George Birdno and children; Mrs. R. S. Patterson and son; Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Dowdle and children; Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Houck; Mr. and Mrs. John J. Birdno and daughters; Mrs. P. P. Greer of Globe; Mrs. W. R. Hatcher and Miss Willa Robinson of Dallas, Texas.

Inception is an ideal summer camp, fourteen miles from town. It can be reached in four hours by a good wagon road that winds in and out among pine trees for five miles to the camp, which is situated in one of the largest canyons of the Graham mountains.

Several mountain streams of cold pure water run down the mountain side through the camp and numerous varieties of wild flowers and ferns grow everywhere. Wild berries of several different kinds grow in profusion and small game is plentiful.

This is the oldest forest ranger station in Crook national forest and was the first nursery for pine trees on the reserve, hence its name Inception. Besides this camp, there are a number of others within a radius of fifteen or eighteen miles of town, whose surroundings are similar to this one. Col. Umbine, on the top of Mt. Graham, is one of the prettiest resorts in Arizona, also one of the highest. Arcadia, located on the southeast end of the mountain is also a delightful place to spend a month's outing.

Charles Freeman has the contract to erect the building for J. C. Robinson on Tenth street that is to be occupied by the Caveness confectionery store. The work is progressing nicely.

Rudolph J. Young of Fumarole spent yesterday and today in town on business.

Frank Tyler of Thatcher is a business visitor here today.

Mr. and Mrs. James Nash, who have been visiting relatives here the past ten days have returned to their home at San Carlos.

W. F. Caveness made a trip to Indian Hot Springs Tuesday. He accompanied his grandmother, Mrs. W. H. Caveness and Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Ellison, who will spend some time at the springs for rest and recreation.

Hon. W. W. Pace was a business visitor in the city today from his home at Thatcher.

Jack Daley, a prominent resident of Thatcher and brother-in-law of John J. Birdno of this city, died at his home in Thatcher Tuesday night of chronic appendicitis.

George Olney, Jr., accompanied by his cousin, Charles Adair of Luna Valley, New Mexico, arrived home today after a month's visit with relatives in New Mexico. Mr. Adair will spend some time in this valley with friends and relatives. They report Luna Valley in a prosperous condition, water and grass being plentiful, and the weather fine.

C. F. Devine of Los Angeles is a business visitor in the valley this week.

Mrs. Dell Merrill of Thatcher is a visitor in the valley metropolis today. P. Michelen was in town today on business from the county seat.

Rev. O. M. Andrews spoke at the meeting of the revival services at the park Tuesday evening. A large crowd was present and an interesting service was held. Rev. McElrath will conduct the meeting tonight.

Mrs. W. D. French chaperoned a picnic party to Cliff's ranch the first

BLOOMER GOWN, LATEST FREAK OF PARIS FASHIONS.

Accustomed as Paris is to freaks of fashion, the boulevardiers gasped at sight of the new bloomer gown when Mlle. Suzanne Bergere of the Opera Comique first appeared in it. The Bergere costume is a startling exaggeration of the pantalon gown which made its appearance some months ago. In fact, Mlle. Bergere's outfit is more of a "they" than an "it," bearing a close resemblance to a pair of ordinary Turkish trousers.

YARNS ABOUT GOLF BALLS AND ANGRY BLACKSNAKES

LONDON, July 14.—The crow seems to be attracted to golf balls in a way wholly peculiar from the rest of the bird species. In parks where the rook and the crow abound one can notice them sitting in the trees or hopping about the putting greens in the distance watching the roll of the ball with a direct or sidelong glance expressive of the keenest interest and curiosity, which soon translated in a desire to carry it off to a roost in the neighboring wood.

The Kew gardens adjoin the Mid-Surrey course and in the royal preserve there used to be a fairly large colony of crows nesting among the trees. Of this colony there was one particular crow who found his great amusement in mingling among the golfers and in disconcerting their play by indulging in repeated predatory campaigns against their golf balls.

His policy was to hover in attendance on those players who used new white balls only. Those on which the paint had been chipped or which had been used for several rounds by an economical player were always rejected by this particular bird as being beneath his fastidious attention.

CHASED BY A BLACKSNAKE
YORK, Pa., July 14.—Kerwin Kinard, of Craleyville, says he can verify that to be chased by an angry bull is nothing to being chased by an angry blacksnake, and his wife can bear him out.

The couple were going through the woods near Rocky, when the fluttering of the woman's skirts evidently aroused the ire of a seven-foot reptile, of the week. Those enjoying the outing besides the chaperone, were: Misses Alberta Colton, Edna French, Ada Thurston and Lottie Colton; Messrs. Albert Todd, Fred Dowdle, Graham French and Paul Lasgreen.

which they failed to see until they almost trod upon it.

They fled down the path and across a field, and declare the snake was in chase until Kinard, in desperation, hurled a stone, and by a lucky shot killed it.

HEN TAKES KITTENS

DRIVES AWAY CAT MOTHER AND HOVERS FAMILY UNDER HER WINGS

LOS ANGELES, July 14.—The maternal instinct of a hen owned by Mrs. T. H. Parsons of 218 North Avenue 22 was so pronounced that when she was prevented from setting she adopted a brood of kittens, much to the chagrin of the felines' own mother. For a week past the whole neighborhood has been excited over the event.

The hen drove away the old cat, and, after coaxing the kittens into her nest, took them under her wing and kept them warm until they grew large enough to care for themselves.

Once each day she would allow their mother to come around and nurse them, but after that they were hers alone until the next day. Mrs. Parsons attempted to give them back to the old cat, but the hen would have none of it, and continued to watch over them and bring them worms and other toothsome morsels until they grew too large and too lively for her to manage any longer.

This is change night at the Iris.
